Student brings resources to Abernethy Laurels

Ryan Proctor, a rising 11th grader at Fred T. Ford High School, has lots to talk about when asked about his summer vacation. He has spent the past three summers assisting with technology needs and projects at Abernethy Laurels.

Since age six, Proctor has been interested in technology. “I picked it up from my Dad,” shared Proctor. “He is an engineer turned graphic designer and some times builds computers.” Proctor provided one-on-one individual lessons on general computer use, using the Internet and emailing, in addition to setting up home computers and troubleshooting. “If they ask and I know how to do it, I will show them,” stated Proctor. “They pick up quickly and are always receptive to trying new things.”

If you ask Ryan if he is enjoying his experience at Abernethy Laurels, he is quick to share that it is great and the people are friendly. Abernethy Laurels sees the benefit of having students on campus. By linking generations, it enriches lives and increases the sense of value for both ages.

Voted #1 Retirement Community

Abernethy Laurels was voted first among retirement communities by readers of the Observer News Enterprise. The “Readers Choice Awards” were announced in August and Abernethy Laurels was voted #1 for the fourth consecutive year.

“There is no better advertising than when your community selects you as the number one choice,” stated Executive Director, Aimee Reimann. “We are delighted to be recognized in this manner and will continue to serve our residents and community with the same level of service that warrants this recognition.”
